Firm of Morgan
Made 10-Millions;
Paid $48,000 TaxEvidence Revealed As Probe Reopens Until Wednesday; Hints Huge Deductions
Under Law on Capital LossesBY NATHAN ROBERTSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Press)

WASHINGTON, May 29.—J. P. Morgan and Company's reports to senate investigators show the firm made nearly ten million dollars on sales and underwriting of securities in 1930 and 1931, years in which the bank's partners paid only $48,000 income tax to the United States.

Hint On Deductions
This startling evidence, brought out while the banking committee investigation of the Morgan house remained in recess until Wednesday, gave a hint of the amounts the twenty partners must have been able to deduct from their income tax returns under the law permitting capital losses to be subtracted from profits. From these earnings also were deducted the running or overhead expenses of the firm.

Almost as surprising was evidence that the great banking house made more on sale of securities and its underwriting business, in each of these two "depression years" than they had made in the boom year 1929, when they paid income tax of $11,000,000.

The total for the three years, including the Morgan company and Drexel and Company, its Philadelphia affiliate in round figures were: 1929—$2,936,000.
1930—$6,730,000.
1931—$3,131,000.Pay No Tax In 1931 Or 1932
Morgan officials testified in the investigation last week that all together they paid only $48,000 income tax in 1930, and none in 1931 or 1932. Profits for 1932 were not included in the figures represented by Pecora.

Demands for changes in the income tax laws have echoed in congress since the revelation that the Morgan partners have escaped payments during the last two years.

The house in passing a new tax bill last week eliminated the carry-over provision of the law, and Representative Vinson (D. Ky.) announced yesterday that the ways and means committee of which he is a member, will soon begin an investigation to find and close other "loopholes" in the statute.

Pecora's figures showed that for the five-year period, 1927 to 1931 inclusive, the Morgan firm made more than $18,000,000 from the

Is ThreatenedBy NATHAN ROBERTSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Roosevelt told members of the senate banking committee today he wanted their investigation of J. P. Morgan and Company and other private bankers to be pushed forward without limit.

In an official source it was asserted that the president "renewed his expression of desire to have the investigation go through without limit and indicated his complete confidence in the committee."

President Satisfied
Members of the committee said they regarded this as an indication that the president was satisfied with the manner in which Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, has been conducting the investigation.

At the beginning of the investigation into private bankers, President Roosevelt gave the committee his backing and urged that the inquiry be a thorough one.

As a matter of fact it was said today in an informed quarter, the president suggested to the committee at that time that its activities be turned toward the private bankers.

His present expression of confidence came after he had spent a weekend down the Potomac with Secretary Woodin, during which they discussed the inclusion of Woodin's name on the list of special clients who obtained stock from the Morgan house at bargain prices.

On his return to Washington last night Woodin told newspapermen he was not resigning.

Glass Threatened

PASTOR'S TALK
STRESSES PEACEIdeal Is Presented By Rev.
Wright at Memorial
Sunday Service

The movement for peace must begin within the individual into him must be injected the spirit of love, which is the spirit of Christ. This ideal was presented by Rev. Dayton Wright, pastor of the Church of Our Saviour (Episcopal) in his Memorial Sunday address yesterday morning, when representatives of Salem's patriotic units attended the service.

The Bible text used by Rev. Wright were words from the book of Isaiah "And they shall beat their swords into plow shares, and their spears into pruning hooks."

Peace Is Keynote
While honoring those who sacrificed their lives to make this country what it is, and the women who toiled and sacrificed with them—peace—how to get it, and how to keep it, was the keynote of the address. National egotism, the spirit of rivalry in commerce and arms and economic inequalities were all pointed out as a narrow conception of patriotism and inimical to world peace.

A brief sketch of the origin of Memorial day prefaced the sermon. Its origin came about in this way. After the war a young German officer, who had come to this country and enlisted and served through CANTON, May 29.—A petition signed by 1,476 residents of Stark county asking for the removal from office of Common Pleas Judge Edwin W. Diehl of Alliance was filed here today. The petition charges malfeasance and misfeasance in office.

Prompted by Bankruptcy Move
The action, filed by L. B. McMillen, Canton attorney, was entered in the court of appeals and will be heard by the three appellate judges at a date not determined. It must be heard within 30 days, statutes provide.

Charges against the jurist grew out of his filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Cleveland federal court. His original petition was dismissed and another proceeding was started under provisions of the amended bankruptcy act, asking for an extension of time to pay his creditors. A proposal to pay $380 a month to creditors for four years was accepted about a month ago.

Charges He Borrowed
The petition specifically charges that Judge Diehl "has for many years used his said office as a means of borrowing money from attorneys practicing before him in said court and from banks and other persons appearing or having litigation before him."

It also charges that the jurist "sought to evade his legal and moral obligations for the repayment of money" and that he "discriminated in favor of attorneys whom he owed money."

East Palestine
Youth Drowned;
Falls From Raft

Robert Mace, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Graver Mace, residing four miles northeast of East Palestine, was drowned when he fell from a raft on which he was playing in a creek on his father's farm Sunday afternoon.

The boy and five companions, including three brothers, were playing at the creek, Robert, leaving the others, climbed onto the raft, which apparently was suddenly carried out into deep water.

Authorities said that the boy either fell from the raft or, not realizing the depth of the creek, climbed off and attempted to wade to the shore.

Suddenly missing the youngster, his companions began a search for him. The body was located 45 minutes later, on the bottom of the creek in about five feet of water, by his brother Paul, 16.

Those aiding in the search were Stella and Esther Curdler and the three brothers, Dale, 13, Junior, 11, and Paul.

The brothers, one sister, Hulda, 21, and the parents survive.
The boy was born in Youngstown on February 27, 1925, and moved to the farm with his parents two years ago.

Commission Calls
Examination For Fire Captaincy

With George Lewis, veteran fire captain now on leave of absence because of ill health and still unable to return to active duties, a promotional examination for the appointment of a permanent captain of the Salem fire department will be held in council chambers, city hall, on Wednesday night, June 14.

The day for the examination was announced today by Frank L. Stewart, chairman of the civil service commission, after Safety Director John R. Kerr extended Lewis' leave from 90 days to an "indefinite period." Lewis, off duty since February 1, is now in San Diego, Calif.

He was granted the 90-day leave by Safety Director Kerr with the hope that he would be able to regain his health and return to his duties some time this month or in June. It was reported today, however, that his physical condition will not enable him to return for some time after which steps were taken immediately by the commission for the appointment of a permanent captain.

Edward Yarwood is now temporary acting successor to the veteran while Fred J. Theiss was named regular fireman to fill the vacancy. All members of the department are eligible to take the examination.

A Great Fair

CHICAGO, May 29.—Well, the big Chicago fair opened on time. It had to open on time to give everybody making those long speeches a chance to get 'em over before it closed. Even the preacher who was supposed to ask the blessing, stuck long enough to continue it into the doxology.

But it was worth all the praying and talking for. Only thing they had thousands of policemen to block you off at every street to see that you didn't get into it. At that there was 40,000 got by the police and got in.

My old friend Brisbane couldn't get in till he used Walter Winchell's card. I sneaked in Amon Carter's silk hat, me and twelve other mice. If there is anywhere in the world you want to go in a crowd, get an old silk hat (the madder the better). Policemen and ushers have more respect for it than a gold engraved card from President Roosevelt.

But it's a great fair. Don't miss it.

MEMORIAL DAY

It seems a long time since boys from the north and boys from the south faced each other with guns in their hands. The years have flown swiftly since then, taking with them more and more of those who participated in that chapter of American history.

It is not so long since American boys learned to hate the Spaniard. Most of them are still alive, wondering, perhaps, what it was they fought for. They see Cuba struggling in revolution once more, the Philippines trying to decide whether or not they want the freedom offered them by a government which admits it no longer wants them and the island empire of the United States an exploded dream of a remote period.

It was but yesterday that the last war was fought. Millions who participated in it are still alive. Nearly every perplexing problem of the world can be traced back directly or indirectly to the chaos and destruction it caused. On every hand there is strong evidence of its effect on humanity—debt, friction, broken bodies, clouded minds, attitudes of hate and international confusion.

Observance of Memorial day has come to include such thoughts as these. It is an indication of a changing conception of humanity toward war. The soldier's sacrifice still commands honor and respect, but in this new day it is more an inspiration for thoughtfulness than rabid patriotism. To the millions who offered their lives Americans once more pay a small part of the tribute that never can be great enough to repay the service they gave. While doing so every thoughtful person sincerely prays that war, which takes life and leaves chaos, may some day be outlawed.

THE POPULAR CONCLUSION

Senator Glass may continue to inquire from Lawyer Pecora and members of the senate banking and currency committee what is the real purpose of the Morgan investigation, but the national audience is no stickler for specific goals. It cares less after the first week of the investigation about what the committee intends to disclose than about what it already has disclosed.

The people have been given a chance to examine a phase of their system. Needless to repeat, they have not found the evidence pleasing. It is their impression that things have been disclosed which call for sweeping measures of reform. Within a few days they have seen reform taking shape in legislation which closes one of the loopholes in an income tax law which seems to have been operated in a distinctly unsocial manner in the case of J. P. Morgan and his partners.

As an ultimate result of the Morgan Co. investigation they hope to see legislation which will remove certain undemocratic differences between little men and big men in the United States. They do not question the right of a Morgan or a Morgan partner to amass fortunes. They do question the right of men possessing fortunes to use their power in ways which experience shows affect the lives of innumerable citizens adversely. As between the Morgan partners and the government, it does not matter that they avoided taxes which tens of thousands of less powerful men were obliged to pay. It does matter tremendously that a system which made such a thing possible might have been permitted to go on without reform.

As individuals J. P. Morgan, his partners and other private bankers who will be put on the stand in Washington have done nothing contrary to the ethics of their group.

It happens, however, that the United States at present is undergoing a social revolution—a reform achieved without violence. As part of the reform, it is inevitable that restrictions will be placed on the money-power which had so much to do with events leading up to the change. The Morgan investigation and the reaction to it in the country constitute an important phase of public determination to bring about a new order of things in what they hope may continue to be a peaceful manner.

What Others Say

SMALL SALES TAX FAVORED

The readiness of national lawmakers to jack up taxes on incomes above a certain figure is due to political, not to sound economic considerations. It has been demonstrated that heavy taxation of incomes diminishes the returns from that source, partly because of purchases by the wealthy of non-taxable securities, but mainly because high taxes so applied kill initiative and cripple productive enterprise through destruction of available capital. Now that an inflexible, annually recurring item of $220,000,000 is to be added to future national budgets, it would be the part of wisdom to make the increased levy in the way least injurious to the constructive forces which the authorities seek to energize. Their desire is greatly to increase employment, thereby greatly increasing consumption of all manner of articles produced by labor. Consequently, if more taxes are to be imposed, the vast debt incurred for that purpose should be liquidated by means of a small consumption or sales tax.

Such a tax is capable of producing a large revenue at an extremely low per capita cost. But politicians at the national capital go on trying to foster the delusion among the many that others, not they pay the cost of government. That delusion has much to do with bringing upon the country such major calamities as the present great depression, which taxes the many so heavily that millions are deprived of every resource. What is especially needed in Washington is more political honesty.—Chicago News.

by Allen Raven on things he forgets. He never knows—and who does?—whether to give valet the "et" or the "ey." And who in this drab world can unscramble the Van Dorens—Mark, Carl and Irita, the Powyses, Ferenc and Franz Molnar, those Wyllies—Max, Philip, Kiskaddon, I. A. R. and Elmore? Or Hamilton, Sir Philip, George and Anthony Clabber? And the Medills, the Rockefellers, the McCormacks and the Huttons? O yes, and Henry Hobart and Hobart Henry of the movies! And Harry Reichenbach and Eddie Rickenbacker?

Because they are all writers. Frank R. Adams and Franklin P. Adams and Louis Sobel and Bernard Sobel are frequently confused. But the absurdity of those of us who write about the passing show can never teach the proof readers to spell these names: Katharine Cornell, Elisabeth Marbury, Russell Crouse.

While Ryley Cooper was Florida bass-fishing recently he approached a breakfast guide had prepared. "Is the coffee hot?" inquired Cooper. Popped the guide: "Listen, it's so hot you can't even point at it!"

Personal nomination for the toothiest smile in the movies—that of Gloria Swanson.

Thingumbobs: The Kent Coopers are on ten weeks tour of the Orient.... Mistineque discovered Chevalier.... Somerset Maugham is a graduate of medicine.... F. Scott Fitzgerald is graying.... Sacha Guitry can't look at poplars without becoming squeamish.... Henry L. Mencken preserves only the scurrilous attacks on him.... Mae West was born on Welfare Island, daughter of Battling Jack West.... Tony Canzoneri has the blacking box he used to carry in New Orleans.... Lawrence Stallings lists himself in "Who's Who" as a "newsapaperman".... Gus Edwards never appears on the street without a lapel flower.... Howard Scott, technocrat, likes molasses on salt mackerel.

The Lisle Bells drove around to see their colored wash-woman the other evening about the week's laundry, the delivery of which was days overdue. Big-hipped and grinning, she was all apologetic about the dereliction. "I ain't actin' forritful," she explained. "But I declare to goodness lately I seem slip-minded."

President Roosevelt is a tough target for caricatures but his cabinet is full of good exaggerating material—Woodin's rebeud mouth, Garber's thorny eyebrows, Mrs. Perkins' hat, Swanson's Death Gulch mustache, etc. Will Hays's outstanding ears and Chevalier's lower lip are in high favor with pen and ink satirists, too.

People are getting too gosh awful bright. Rushing to a bank today to get some change, Henry Sell, in the lobby, jered: "A rendezvous with debt!"

The Stars Say:

For Tuesday, May 30

Tuesday's astrological prospects are particularly fortunate for those in finance or in those lines of endeavor calling for particular initiative and aggressiveness of operation. This applies to speculative affairs rather than to investments—real possessions, lands or tenancies—which may develop some obstructing or postponing element to be disposed of.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and enterprising year, with much stirring in speculation, business, writings, or in individual initiative, but investments, lands, tenancies and kindred interests may meet setback or delay. Wills, bequests and the co-operation of elders may benefit. Personal matters will be found pleasant and prosperous.

A child born on this day should be versatile, energetic, and ambitious and should make success in many lines of effort, also being benefited by elders.

ARCTURUS ON TIME
VALUABLE PICTURE
500-MILE RACE

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"A CENTURY OF Progress Exposition" Chicago—Men have asked often, "Have I really a soul? That the soul exists was impressed upon many at the 'A Century of Progress' exposition when a blind man, Dr. Edwin B. Frost, director emeritus of Yerkes observatory, attended the realization of the suggestion made by him originally, that the light of the star Arcturus be used to start earthly lights that flood the exposition buildings.

EXACTLY on time, 40 years after it fell Arcturus, having traveled through the ether 225,000,000,000,000 miles, the light of the great star, feeblest than that of a candle when it reaches the earth, was magnified and made to do its work.

If an astronomer, old and blind, can originate a magnificent experiment of this kind, if a Beethoven, stone deaf, can write and conduct his most magnificent symphony, you feel that there is something within the human brain not dependent on matter or time or any mere "response to chemical or other reaction."

DO NOT FAIL to see Chicago's art exhibition at the Chicago Art Institute when you visit Chicago and the "A Century of Progress Exposition."

Chauncey McCormick, chairman of Chicago's art committee, will receive this afternoon the only picture in the exhibit that comes from abroad. Whistler's famous picture of his mother, it comes from the Louvre in Paris, lent by the French government.

The portrait was painted in 1871, 62 years ago, exhibited in Chicago in 1880. Then it was for sale at $1,200. No one bought it. Whistler exhibited it in Paris in 1883, and the French government bought it for 4,000 francs, about $800. You could not buy the picture now for $500,000, and Chicago's art committee spends $5,000 for transportation, insurance, and more than six times what it would have cost to buy it. Moral: Buy good pictures, if you are sure that they are good.

VISITORS to the Chicago exposition now can combine with their trip attendance at the Indianapolis 500-mile annual automobile race on Decoration day.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, best fighting flyer this nation has produced, telegraphs "the new racing rules will mean greater speed and safety in transportation; in this race, and in passenger cars later. Instead of carrying 40 to 50 gallons of gasoline, which means dangerously unbalanced cars when the gasoline becomes exhausted, only 15-gallon tanks will be permitted this year.

"Winning the race demands greater mileage in racing cars, which will be translated into economical operation for automobile buyers.

"The Indianapolis race is more than a test of speed and endurance, providing automotive engineers with thorough tests of advanced engineering ideas."

PASCO, Wash.—This city is air-minded, and a severe dust storm isn't enough to keep the home folks from turning out when a new model airplane visits the local airport. Nearly everyone from the mayor down saw the new model all-metal, low-wing, twin-motor, two-pilot Boeing transport planes put into service between here and Boise by United Airlines.

Don't Put Off Tonsil Operation

There is a popular notion that tonsils and adenoids should be removed only during warm weather. In consequence, many anxious mothers are now worried about the operation.

Some ask whether I think it advisable to have the child's tonsils removed. I cannot advise in a particular case because it is impossible to determine without a personal examination. But I can tell you a few facts about tonsils and adenoids. The tonsils are two round-shaped, soft masses located on each side of the throat. The tonsils may enlarge and usually do so when infected. As they increase in size, they approach each other in the middle of the throat. This condition leads to a pain and difficulty in swallowing.

Obstruct the Throat
Tonsils that are enlarged but not diseased, should not be removed. Undoubtedly, they will shrink as the child grows older. But diseased tonsils that obstruct the throat, causing repeated sore throats and attacks of tonsillitis should be removed. They are a source of danger and hinder the health and welfare of the child.

It is easier to determine whether adenoids should be removed. They are a source of danger and hinder the health and welfare of the child.

It is easier to determine whether adenoids should be removed. Adenoids are the soft tissue found in the throat back of the nose. This tissue should be removed when it interferes with normal breathing.

Children with adenoids breathe through the mouth instead of through the nose. These children are backward in their school work and suffer from frequent head colds and recurring ear infections. They are underweight and are extremely susceptible to infectious diseases.

The question is often asked, how old should a child be before his tonsils or adenoids are removed. Ordinarily this operation should not be performed before a child is two and a half years of age. In certain cases, where there is marked enlargement and difficulty in breathing, the operation may be performed at an earlier age. It should never be done during an acute attack of tonsillitis or during the course of any fever.

A Simple Operation
Parents need not dread having the child's tonsils and adenoids removed. It is a simple procedure and need cause no alarm. They may be removed at any time of the year. Whenever possible, it is best to have the operation performed at a hospital, where the child may rest over night and receive the necessary care.

Occasionally children continue to have difficulty in breathing even after the tonsils and adenoids are removed. This may be due to sinus trouble; in that case the nose is filled with the nasal secretions.

Difficult nose breathing may be caused by year-round hay fever. In rare instances it can be traced to a narrow and highly arched jaw. This may be corrected by the use of metal braces on the teeth which serve to reduce the arch and spread the jaw.

When difficult breathing is due to hay fever, special vaccines are recommended. The results are satisfactory and well worth the effort.

If you are in doubt about the condition of your child's throat, consult your doctor. He will advise you after examining the patient.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPIING

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE
Boxall tried to talk calmly, without any prejudice, or any gnashing of teeth. But the fire within would not be smothered. His rapid mouth began to snarl and to declaim.

"Yes; they were all there, sir, with Turrell in the chair. He had his snarl at me directly I went in. 'That's right, Mr. Boxall. We want all the representatives of the Press here. Sit down and put it all on paper. We don't want any hole-and-corner business. Impartiality—you stick to that!' Impartiality! I could see most of them turn and look at me and their sulky, snarling faces. They had old Throgghead there, and they made him get up and pump out his opinions. His opinions! The man looked yellow, and all gone flat. He stuttered, and lost himself. You could see Turrell biting at his beard, he was savage. You could feel the greed in the room like a raw fog. It stuck in their throats. Phrases!"

Boxall walked on his toes, his whole body moving jerkily as though it were some mechanism worked by steel springs. His gestures were grotesque, almost hysterical. His words flew out as though they were afraid of being taken.

"Do anything? Not they! They said openly—Turrell himself said it—that the thing was a political job. They refused to be talked down at by the bigwigs in London. Crump's face! Running over with mug, shrewd smiles. He'd prompted them."

Wolfe felt a grave disgust for Boxall. The man was too venomous, too wet about the mouth. His red head might have been rolled out of a furnace.

"Then they refused to do anything?"

"They have sold themselves to the devil."

Wolfe's silence was more impressive than the journalist's spitting scorn.

They reached Peachy Hill and the stone house by the Lombardy poplars. Joseph Crabbe was sitting in his garden, a frail handkerchief across his knees, a frail black little figure that watched and waited.

"They told him the news."

"What else did you expect?" he said with a flash of the eyes at Boxall.

"They have doomed themselves today, though it may take years to prove their ruination. John Wolfe, if I prayed, sir, I should pray for just one thing."

"And that?"

"Cholera."

They looked at him in silence, this grim old man who was ready to let death loose in order to prove the virtues of clean living.

Soon after her return from abroad, Ursula Brandon decided to explore Navestock's slums. For the first time, she walked its streets, observing and observed.

The next day she sent for Crump, and held him to his cynicisms, under one of the cedar trees. The borders below the house were brilliant with tulips. The man and the woman sat in their chairs and talked.

"My dear Mrs. Brandon, I have already explained that all this was thrashed out and settled while you were away."

"I suppose that even a Brandon is allowed to have a conscience! You settle mine for me—in my absence."

"My dear lady—"

"I am not being sentimental, Mr. Crump. I have seen dirty towns in the South but somehow, it seems different from English dirt. Perhaps it is the greyness and slime of a wet climate. I have come to feel suddenly that the money we take from that property is polluted."

He stared at her, nodding a whimsical head.

"If my stables were as dirty as much of that Navestock property, you think I should keep my coachman? A horse is a clean beast, and deserves to be better treated than most men. But those cottages! On's pride is piqued. It is intolerable that these inferior people should have a just grievance against their betters. No. We must do something."

Crump reflected, and then glimmered his little eyes at her.

"Of course, my dear madam, you will have to persuade your trustees."

"I shall persuade them, if necessary."

"No doubt, no doubt. But until they have considered the matter—"

She betrayed a sudden kindling anger that astonished Crump. He had always said that she was more like a beautiful corpse than a woman.

"I have not asked you here for you to collect all the objections you can think of. I expect a lawyer to legalize my wishes, not to contradict them."

The very next morning John Wolfe received a note from Mrs. Ursula Brandon asking him to call at "Pardons" that afternoon.

"I wanted to talk to you. That is why I sent you that note," she explained in greeting the young physician. "I wanted to tell you that I explored Navestock a day or two ago. Much of the place was as new to me as the Trastevere Quarter in Rome. It is abominably ugly."

Wolfe watched her white hands. They moved with a slow serenity, very beautiful with their flowing lines.

"Well, I want you to draw up a report on the state of my property in Navestock, and to make any suggestions that you please."

Wolfe looked at her searchingly. She seemed to have made up her mind upon an impulse.

"It will be a big business to make the town what it should be. Moreover, we shall need the co-operation of such men as Turrell."

"Perhaps nothing less than the plagues of Egypt will persuade some of the people. At all events, you will do this for me?"

"Nothing could please me better."

A third will attend services in Damascus while two others are in ill health and will probably not be able to be present.

Join In Exercises Here

Those who plan to participate here are Charles Bonsall, now in his ninety-fourth year, and the oldest of the survivors, and William Horne, 83, the youngest member of the group.

Another of the veterans, M. G. Rumble, in his ninety-fourth year, lives in Damascus and plans to attend Tuesday morning memorial services there.

The two other survivors, Henry Older, 92, of Salem, and Alfred Thoman, 92, of Leetonia, are ill and probably will not be able to take part in the day's activities, either here or elsewhere.

Included, however, in the array of former soldiers who will pay tribute to dead comrades in Salem cemeteries, will be Albert E. Bonsall, 87, of Richmond, Ind., who for the last year has been living with his niece, Miss Adda Bonsall, Ellsworth rd. Bonsall, the son of Thomas Bonsall, one of the original members of Treseott post, is a former Salem resident but has been residing in Richmond for 40 years.

He and his father fought in the Civil war, the former running away from home to enlist when he was but 15 years old. With his father he operated a book store here years ago while he also is believed to have conducted the city's first variety store. Later he was the proprietor of a five and ten cent store at Canton.

Horne Oldest Member

Horne while the youngest of the Treseott post members, nevertheless is the oldest member from the standpoint of continued years of membership. He also is accredited with the unique record of having served four years in the war although he was only 18 when awarded his honorable discharge. He enlisted at the age of 14.

The veterans strive to continue a sacred tradition with G. A. R. veterans—that of annually taking part in the decoration of graves in which their comrades of wartime days lie. Since the inception of Memorial day on May 30, 1865, through General John A. Logan's order Treseott post, has kept unbroken its record of annually participating in such services here.

On that first Memorial day, 54 graves were decorated during solemn memorial services. When observance of the day is held here tomorrow, the graves of almost 500 will be strewn with flowers.

quiry, said today he had received a letter threatening his "assassination" because of his attitude in questioning the committee counsel's tactics and demanding to know the course of the inquiry.

Glass told reporters this afternoon that at tomorrow's committee meeting he would ask for a showdown on the investigation.

The president's endorsement of the inquiry was understood to have been communicated to members of the committee who have defended Pecora's conduct against the criticisms from Glass.

Other members of the committee said they had received heavy mail reaction to their attitudes in the investigation, showing wide public interest.

So far as could be learned, however, no others have received threatening letters.

sale of securities. Morgan partners testified during last week's inquiry that the investment business was a comparatively minor part of their operations.

In addition to their profits from the sale and underwriting of securities, the Morgan partners reported to the committee profits running into the millions from operations in joint accounts or syndicates, but the total was untabulated. In 1929, they reported a profit of $1,651,000 from one of these operations alone, in Procter and Gamble stock.

Reveal Secret Records

Also the profits from underwriting ventures were not complete, because in many cases the firm retained blocks of stock which were not estimated in cash.

The records, drawn from hitherto secret Morgan files, disclosed that in 1929, the firm made $1,272,000 from issues it managed; and $744,000 from issues managed by others, while Drexel made $195,000 from the issues it managed; $13,600 from issues managed by others and $62,000 from underwritings.

In 1929 Morgan made $4,074,000 from issues managed by others; $576,000 from issues managed by others; and $1,183,000 from underwritings, while Drexel made $381,000 from issues they managed and $267,000 from issues originated by others.

The figures for 1931 showed these profits respectively for Morgan as $1,261,000; $290,000 and $75,000 and Drexel as $1,381,000 and $154,000.

While these figures were coming out, Pecora and his staff were in New York preparing for resumption of the open investigation Wednesday.

Fruit Juices to Tempt the Child With Fussy Appetite

When your child will not eat, what do you do?

Many mothers face this problem with children who are undernourished, but who will not eat not only the foods that they should, but who won't eat enough of any food. The wise mother will solve this worry by giving youngsters with finicky appetites, a large amount of fruit juices, every day, experience having found that a child will generally not balk at this. These fruit juices, you see, may easily replace part of the other foods and liquids in the diet, until appetite is regained. And with plenty of orange or lemon juice the child usually soon perks up.

Oranges and Lemons Good

The fruit acids and vitamin B content of oranges and lemons are especially excellent for stimulating appetites, while children like the flavor of fruit juices and so will drink them readily. Then, too, there are delightful citrus fruit salads that are healthful and particularly inviting as the weather grows warmer.

Here is a delicious salad that I have found appeals very much to children, as it is decorative as well as flavorful. Peel six oranges, removing skin down to juicy pulp. Cut out segments with a sharp knife. Arrange on beds of shredded lettuce on individual salad plates. Sprinkle three-quarters of a cup of grated carrot mixed with an equal quantity of grated coconut over the orange segments. Save orange juice in segmenting oranges, add a little sugar and pour over salad as dressing. This golden salad will serve six.

Good Fruit Dessert

Here is orange, banana and marshmallow dessert, quickly prepared and a favorite with adults as well as youngsters: Peel four oranges and cut in slices. Cut slices in quarters. Combine with one cup banana slices and eight marshmallow quarters.

Serve in dessert glasses, covering fruit mixture with orange juice which has been sweetened to taste, with sugar or honey.

A most refreshing summer drink is frosted orange juice and one that children love. To a glass of chilled orange juice add two or three tablespoons of vanilla ice cream. Stir until partially dissolved. Serve at once.

$30,000 RANSOM PAID FOR GIRL

Daughter of Kansas City City Manager Freed; Hunt Abductors

(By Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, May 29. — This city's police were unlooked today in a determined hunt for the men who abducted the city manager's daughter from her home in daylight, gave her roses in captivity and released her unharmed for $30,000.

While the daughter, Mary, 25, was a prisoner, City Manager H. P. McElroy held the officers under his command in check, for death had been threatened the girl if he sought the kidnappers. Once released, however, and despite threats of violence against him, he ordered a widespread search.

Crying proudly, "I didn't break, I didn't break," and wearing on her dress two roses given her by her abductors, Miss McElroy was released at the entrance of the Milburn golf club shortly before 4 p. m. Sunday. Her release came an hour and a half after McElroy and his son had met the kidnappers on a country road west of Kansas City, Kas., and delivered to them $30,000 in currency.

The young woman was taken from the family home in the fashionable Country club district of Kansas City about 11 a. m. Saturday by two men who, showing weapons, forced the housekeeper to admit them. Miss McElroy was in her bath. They compelled her to dress quickly.

After hours of anxious waiting, the city manager received a series of letters and telephone calls, demanding $60,000 ransom and instructing him where to pay it. McElroy pleaded he was unable to raise $60,000 and finally in a telephone conversation yesterday afternoon the girl's abductors agreed to accept half that amount.

McElroy, who had obtained $25,000 of the money in bills of small denomination and five $1,000 bills, with the aid of friends who offered their cash resources because banks were closed when the kidnappers made known their demands, was met by two masked men at a rendezvous they named. Several other men were in the kidnappers' car. "Three or four," said the city manager's son, who accompanied his father.

Miss McElroy's release followed.

GANDHI BREAKS 3-WEEK FAST

Glass of Orange Juice Is First Food Taken Since May 8

POONA, India, May 29. — "In God's name I began this fast, and in God's name end it," said the Mahatma Gandhi today as he broke a three-week voluntary abstinence from food in the "untouchables" cause by sipping a glass of orange juice.

He began the fast at noon, May 8.

The end of the fast was as impressive as its beginning.

The Mahatma concluded his period of abstinence at 12:40 p. m. and thus he was wholly without food for three weeks and forty minutes.

Long before he broke his fast the residence of Madame Sarojini Naidu, poet and lecturer, where he was cared for was besieged by his friends of all castes, Hindus, Mohammedans, Parsees and Europeans.

Madame Naidu stood at the top of the stairway, relentlessly selecting those to be admitted. No credentials and no amount of money could secure entrance.

Finally 150 men and women friends and a score of newspapermen were admitted into a big white hall. Gandhi's bed was brought in, and he voicelessly acknowledged the greetings of all present.

On declaring that his fast was ended as it was begun, "in God's name," the Mahatma continued: "My faith is not less, but more. In this occasion, and I sing the glory of God."

"I cannot forget the doctors and my other friends who poured attention on me during the days of my privilege and my grace, x x x."

"I am glad the untouchables are here with us. I do not know what God expects from me now, but whatever it may be, I know he will give me strength for it."

Throughout the depression the unit sales, or we might say tonnage sales, of the majority of food products have suffered only a moderate recession. Demoralization of prices, however, particularly in dairy and packing house products, has raised havoc with profits both through narrower profit margins on current operations and through inventory losses. With the deflationary price movement definitely halted and an inflationary trend inaugurated, better days would

Quakers Vanquish Palestine To Retain County Track Title

Four Records Fall In Saturday Meet; Harris Beats Reidy

Ruth Stars As New Yorkers Defeat White Sox Twice Sunday

Speed Kings Ready for Title Race

Salem Star Half-Miler Stages Great Finish To Defeat Palestine Rival In Record Time; Russell, Arnold, Pauline Set Marks

Forced into record-breaking performances in four events by surprise performances of their traditional East Palestine rivals, Salem High athletes retained the championship crown of Columbiana county in the county's thirty-first annual track and field meet at Reilly athletic stadium Saturday.

A total of 74 points was amassed by Red and Black clad performers with East Palestine attaining runner-up honors with 62½. The meet, involving athletes of six schools, developed into a dual competition with Palestine trailing the Quakers by three and four points until closing events.

Lisbon Ranks Third

Lisbon, with a mere handful of athletes, ranked third with 10 points while Wellsville and Leetonia shared third honors with seven each. Columbiana scored 3½ points. Leetonia, by outscoring Columbiana, gained the county Class B crown for a second straight year.

Far more important than the battle between teams in the meet were individual contests in both track and field between those two rival schools, Salem and Palestine. And claiming the major portion of the honors was the half-mile race, an event as thrilling as any ever seen in the county and one in which Keith Harris, Salem distance star, defeated Reidy, the Brown and White speed expert.

Reidy, who last week ran in second place in the state 880 and who had won the district half mile championship by defeating his rival of Saturday, was the big favorite to win the event again in the county contest. He was also visioned at the holder of a new county record.

Both Break Record

The latter prediction came true; Reidy did better the former mark of 2 min. 5 sec., held jointly by Leonard Perkins of Salem and Bucher of East Liverpool, but in front of him was Harris who ran the best race of his scholastic career, outrunning his rival in a sensational last-turn sprint, to break the tape a yard ahead of him. Harris' time was 2 min. 35 sec.

Sharing honors with Harris for record-crashing feats were Wayne Russell, William Pauline and Bruce Arnold, all of Salem, and who, together with the half-mile, ended their schoolboy athletic careers Saturday.

Russell broke his own record of 45 ft. 3¼ in. in the shot put no less than six times, getting out one long heave of 49 ft. 2 in. that will be jotted down for athletes to shoot for in future years. Arnold, undaunted by a slow, heavy track wet from morning rains, chased over frame obstacles in the 220-yd low hurdles in 26.1 sec., bettering the mark of Clayton Schindler (Palestine) by 1 second.

Breaks Broad Jump Mark

Pauline sent his lithe form through the air to a distance of 21 feet 4½ in. for a record in the broad jump.

Salem captured nine firsts with Palestine gaining the firsts in all other six events. The battle for the title was close until the final three events, the broad jump, low hurdles and mile relay. Salem also captured first in the last named race, Harris again beating Reidy to the tape in a chase that was almost exact replica of the 880 final.

The Brown and White gained several first-places through unexpected performances by its athletes. Parker tossing the discus 121 ft. 10½ in. to beat out Russell while Fullerton, surprised followers of both schools by beating out Purn Sidinger in the high jump. Dasco (Palestine) scored still another surprise when his toss of 150 ft. 2 in. in the javelin bettered Russell's best effort.

Arnold Leads Scoring

Arnold captured high-scoring honors with 13 points, getting a second in the 220 and another first in the 160 when he just nosed out Griffiths (East Palestine) in a great race. Russell ranked second with 11 while Griffiths tallied 9½ for third scoring honors.

42 TO START IN SPEED CLASSIC

Two Men, Driver and His Mechanic, Die In Trials Sunday

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—Forty-two of the fastest race cars in America today were groomed for the start of the 500-mile speed classic here tomorrow, but another, the ill-fated machine which roared over the wall at a turn yesterday, was a burned wreck and the two men who rode it were dead.

Victims of the first fatal accident on the treacherous 2½ mile brick course this year, the dead were William Denver of Audubon, Pa., driver, and Bob Hurst, Indianapolis, riding mechanic. They were tossed clear when their car, the same one in which Al Aspen of Philadelphia escaped serious injury after a 1,000-foot skid a week ago tore through the outer retaining field, struck a tree and burst into flames.

Quick action by onlookers saved them from death in the fire, but Denver died of a broken neck and Hurst of a skull fracture. Denver, 32 years old, was preparing to qualify the car for a starting position, and was making a practice run at 105 miles per hour when the accident occurred. Hurst was 31. Both men were married.

Forty-four drivers had bettered the required 100 miles per hour for 25 miles when a rain halted the time trials 48 minutes before sundown yesterday. The starting field is limited to 41.

Two racers who had the slowest qualifying averages, Merrill "Doc" Williams, of Franklin, Ind., 104.558 miles per hour, and Sam Palmer of Los Angeles, 105.998, were automatically eliminated. Officials announced a 48-minute period for late qualifying attempts today.

After the added trials today, the track was to be closed until tomorrow.

Speedway officials announced the race will not be broadcast.

CORBETT MEETS JIM M'LARNIN IN TITLE TILT

Welterweight Rivals Will Clash in Los Angeles Stadium Tonight

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES, May 29.—Young Corbett the third, (born Giordano) goes out tonight to defend his welterweight boxing title against hard punching Jimmy McLarnin, less than 100 days after he won the championship from Jackie Fields, Corbett, whose home is in Fresno, Calif., captured the belt from Field on Washington's birthday, at San Francisco.

Tonight's battle will also be in Wrigley field, and if all the customers come there will be room for

Measurements of Titular Rivals

LOS ANGELES, May 29.—Measurements of the principals in the welterweight title bout tonight:

	Corbett	McLarnin
Age	27	25
Height	5' 5½"	5' 6½"
Weight	147	145
Reach	69	70
Chest (nec.)	40	38½
Chest (exp.)	43½	41¼
Waist	32	30½
Neck	16	15
Biceps	12½	14
Forearm	11	11½
Wrist	7	7¼
Thigh	21	21½
Calf	14	13½
Ankle	8½	9¼

approximately 50,000. However, a bit over half the capacity attendance will please the promoters.

When Corbett and McLarnin weigh in at 3 p. m., the pride of Fresno is sure to have a slight weight advantage and this margin doubtless will be increased 6-12 hours later when they crawl in the ring. McLarnin probably will not weigh more than 145 pounds at any time while Corbett's 147 may mount to 149.

McLarnin is taller, younger and lighter while Corbett is regarded as the stronger. Corbett is a south paw but McLarnin supporters claim the Belfast boy, now residing at Vancouver, B. C., is prepared to adopt good baseball strategy by meeting left hand pitching with right hand hitting.

A majority of the experts have lined up in the Corbett camp and the champion ruled the favorite from odds to 2 to 1 to 10 to 8.

On the other hand McLarnin fans express great faith in Jimmy's cutting right and catch as catch can opinion seemed to be that if a knockout is scored, McLarnin will do it.

The main event will get under way about 9:30 o'clock (Pacific Standard time). George Blake, Los Angeles, will referee.

Babe Hits 3 Homers; Cubs Win

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just about every time the fans start saying that Babe Ruth is "through" at last, baseball's great slugger and great showman steps out and shows them there's life in the old boss yet.

The Babe has been a wide open target this season with his extra load of weight and years and with the old spring and speed visibly missing, and when the Yankees came back from their western tour with Ruth's home run total just where it was when they left, at five, the rumors came thick and fast.

U. S. Isolation Alternative To Arms-Economic Amity

With ex-Premier Edouard Herriot of France condemning the four-power peace pact, proposed by Premier Mussolini of Italy, and rejecting other proposals for drastic cuts in armament; and Viscount Ishii of Japan refusing to accept the U. S. stand on aggressor nations, as defined by the League of Nations, it looks as if the world is not exactly sincere in its desire for the peace for which the U. S. is striving. Nor does Britain's action in negotiating trade treaties with other powers indicate that the forthcoming Economic Conference at London will be a success. So it is cheering to know that in the event of the breakdown of armament and economic parleys, the U. S. is all prepared to withdraw into its shell and pursue a policy of isolation. To this end plans are now being drawn up in the capital, which among other things call for a navy and reserve army second to none in the world.

TRY THE SALEM NEWS

A great pack of lions in their lair in an African jungle, ruled by the "Lion Man", a strange white man who speaks only the language of the lions; the capture of both the lions and the man by a circus man; a burning circus and terrific stampede of animals and human beings—these are a few of the salient features of "King of the Jungle", a tremendously stirring melodrama which opened yesterday at the State theater.

Plenty of Excitement
The audience is caught up in the excitement of the narrative from the opening scene to the last reel. The whole film moves at a terrific pace and a stampede scene in which a herd of elephants runs wild through the city streets, overturning buses, smashing automobiles, tearing up water hydrants and crashing through windows has seldom been duplicated for thrills.

The film is also unusually interesting because of its leading player—Buster Crabbe.

Buster Crabbe.

... Buster Crabbe, swimming champion of renown, selected for the role of the Lion Man following a nation wide search, gives an amazingly fine performance. He has, of course, the magnificent physique which was required for this particular character—a young man brought up from the age of three by a pack of lions. But, in addition, although the "King of the Jungle" marks his first appearance before the camera, Crabbe proves himself to be an actor of ease, intelligence and charm.

The Story Briefly

According to the story, Kasper the Lion Man, has grown up in his jungle, happy with his lion friends, and knowing nothing of the outside world, until he and his lions are captured and brought back to America to become a part of a circus. Kasper escapes and while dodging the police he climbs through an apartment window because he sees food on the table and there meets the first white friend he has—Ann—in the person of Frances Dee and she gives the best performance of her rather short career.

Ann goes along with Kasper as his teacher when he goes back to the circus, at her request. A year later they are married and Kasper is now, in all appearance, a civilized gentleman. But in his heart all he can think of is how to get his lion friends back to their jungle.

The climax is an exciting one but a happy one. In addition to Miss Dee and Crabbe there are Irving Pichel, Sidney Toler, Sam Baker, Ronnie Cosby and Florence Britton.
